

ISLE OF HARRIS is actually joined to the Isle of Lewis, and has a short border, shown by a 'dashed' line on the map (page 5). Harris has a wide range of landscapes, all of which have their own charm and interest. On the west coast lie some of the most spectacular beaches of Britain (marked on the map) with large open machair areas. In the north, the terrain is rugged, mountainous and has a Lunar feel to it, with huge boulders littered around. The east coast is more isolated and has some of the oldest rocks in the world.

HEBSCAPE GALLERY AND TEAROOM on the A859, Ardhasaig, Isle of Harris is the perfect place to relax with stunning views over West Loch Tarbert, Taransay and the North Harris mountains.
